

Noubliez jamais qu'en anglais la poésie tient à la qualité lyrique - musicale - du texte, beaucoup plus qu'au fait qu'il soit écrit en rimes ou non. Aussi, chaque fois que cela sera possible, écoutez un poème avant de le lire en prêtant une attention particulière aux sons et aux rythmes.

I. THE TYPE OF POEM

poetry: la poésie
 a poem: un poème
 a sonnet: un sonnet
 an elegy: une élégie
 a poem written in blank verse: un poème en prose

verse: de la poésie
 poetic: poétique
 an ode: une ode
 a ballad: une ballade
 a poem written in free verse: un poème en vers libres

//

II. THE CHARACTERS

Which personal pronoun(s) is / are used most often? 'I' / another pronoun.
 Who is the persona (= the person speaking the words of the poem, the 'I')?
 Was / Is the persona involved in what is described?

to be involved: être impliqué

III. THE STRUCTURE

1. The sounds:

What sounds recur most often? Does this have any particular significance?
 Is the poem rhymed? If so, is the rhyme pattern regular?
 Are there pararhymes or internal rhymes?
 What use does the poet make of other repetitive devices such as alliterations and assonances?
 What effect is produced by these repetitions?

a device: un procédé
 the rhyme: la rime
 internal rhymes: rimes internes
 vowel sound: son de voyelle harsh consonant: consonne dure
 onomatopoeia: onomatopée
 an alliteration: une allitération

a stanza: une strophe rhyme pattern: organisation des rimes pararhymes: rimes approximatives consonant sound: son de consonne liquid consonant: consonne liquide
 a pattern of sound: un effet sonore
 an assonance: une assonance

2. The rhythm:

Are there stanzas? if so, are they regular? if not, what does it mean?
 Is the poem written in free verse / blank verse?
 Are most of the lines tetrameters (= four-foot lines) / pentameters (= five-foot lines)?
 Is the basic foot the iamb [u -]?
 Are there many occurrences of other feet such as trochees [- u], spondees [- -], anapaests [u u -], or dactyls [- uu]?
 Are there many enjambments or run-on lines, or, on the contrary, does each line make up a whole?
 Does the arrangement of the lines give fluidity to the poem or, on the contrary, is it a sprung rhythm?

versification/ prosody: la versification
 the caesura: la césure
 a line: un vers
 the rhythm: le rythme
 sprung rhythm: rythme haché
 the stress: l'accent tonique
 a stressed / unstressed syllable: une syllabe accentuée / non accentuée an iamb: un iambe (syllabe non accentuée suivie d'une syllabe accentuée [u -]) a trochee: un trochée (syllabe accentuée suivie d'une syllabe non accentuée [- u]) a spondee: un spondée [- -]

an anapaest: un anapaste [u u -]

the lilt: la cadence rythmique
 a foot: un pied
 blank verse: poésie non rimée
 a lively rhythm: un rythme rapide
 a run-on line: un enjambement to bear the stress: être accentué
 a dactyl: un dactyle [- u u]

IV. THE MESSAGE OF THE POEM

Does the poem recall an individual or a general experience?

What feelings does the persona express?

How do the similes and metaphors help to convey the message of the poem?

How do the similes and metaphors help to convey the feelings of the persona?

To what semantic field(s) do they belong?

What do the symbols used reveal about the poet's preoccupation(s)?

How do they enrich the message?

Do they make the poem more immediately understandable or do they give it an abstract quality?

Are there correspondences between sounds, smells, and feelings?

How the other figures of speech and figures of rhetoric enrich the message of the poem.?

the imagery: l'ensemble des images

figurative language: mots dont le sens est figuré

metaphor: métaphore

to evoke: évoquer

to stir emotions: faire naître des émotions

to achieve a contrast: établir un contraste

a figure of speech: une figure de style

simile: comparaison, image

an extended metaphor: une métaphore filée

to convey: exprimer, traduire

to appeal to senses: faire appel aux cinq sens

to hold one's emotions in check: contôler ses émotions

V. CONCLUSION

What effect does this poem have on the reader?

What feelings does it elicit?

Can you draw a parallel with another poem / a text you know?

the poet's craft: l'art du poète

a gloomy atmosphere: une atmosphère sinistre

to strike a different note: changer de ton

to do away with form: se libérer des contraintes formelles

a striking feature: une caractéristique frappante

a hint of sadness: une touche de tristesse

to elicit: susciter, provoquer

A FEW DEFINITIONS

* an alliteration: a special sound effect in poetry, it is the repetition of consonant sounds.

* an assonance: a vowel rhyme. It contributes to creating the lilt of the poem.

* a metaphor: a comparison of two basically unlike things. However the comparison is not stated directly.

* a simile: a direct comparison of two things using a comparing word such as like or as.

* lyricism: the quality of a piece of writing that is the expression of a mood or a feeling.